

Hello

My name is Ashley, I am 18 years old and I graduated from high school in 2021 I would be really lying if I said I expected to finish high school on time because I had a lot of reasons that would be actually holding me back from finishing high school. My story with KINAMBA COMMUNITY PROJECT started in 2013, when I joined the project. Until then I was literally hopeless and all dreams that any child could dream of becoming when they grow up seemed delusional to me. Saying that doesn't mean I had no dream or goals, I had goals and I still do but back then I had not a single clue how it would happen.

After joining KCP my life changed in many aspects. I got a lot of advice that made me who I am today and I received love and support more than I ever imagined. KCP taught me to be grateful for all the opportunities that I have, it taught me to be hardworking and that anything I dream of I can also work hard to get it as nothing is impossible when you are passionate and determined. I learnt to be creative in ways of thinking and this is because of the holiday programme that we used to have.

I am who I am today because of KCP and although I haven't achieved a lot I am on my way there and the next time you read something I write it will be about all that.

I am going to college to be able to master in forensic sciences afterwards I hope to work in the criminal justice system and by this am very grateful to KCP, I could not have realized my ambition without it.

And this is a promise I have made to myself and to KCP that I will work hard to be like Meg Fletcher and help children out of love and grace and not only children but also anyone that needs my help, so this will keep me motivated to wake up every day with determined mentality.

Allow me to conclude saying...THANK YOU SO MUCH SO MUCH KCP, I LOVE YOU
